Mediation is a relatively inexpensive, user friendly method of resolving disputes whereby the parties retain full control over the process. There is no requirement to agree to anything at mediation, which is not acceptable to you. In the event that you decline to submit this dispute to mediation and subsequently pursue the claim in court or through adjudication or arbitration, the adjudicator, arbitrator or judge may take the refusal to mediate into account when awarding costs and even if your claim is successful the normal practice that costs follow the event may be reversed. Furthermore, the respondent may apply to the court for a stay of action pending mediation of the dispute.

You will receive a Notice of Mediation in due course stating the Date, Time and Location of the Mediation and the name of the Mediator assigned to your dispute.
